

Helping Oklahoma Businesses Stay Strong

Reminders

Join Certified Healthy Oklahoma

Certified Healthy Oklahoma, the state's free wellness certification program for businesses, schools, churches and other organizations, is gearing up for its 2017 application period. The application period will open in August, but your organization can begin preparing now with the program's free resources that can help satisfy criteria for the certification. Now accepting larger nonprofits

Insure Oklahoma is now accepting nonprofits with 500 or fewer employees.

To qualify, the organizations must meet all other Insure Oklahoma criteria, such as offering a qualified health plan and being registered with the state of Oklahoma. Nonprofits that wish to apply may do so at www.insureoklahoma.org.

Dates to Remember

Where to send pay information

The Insure Oklahoma employee application sometimes requests documents to verify income. If income verification is required, please direct the employee to upload the documents through the employee's online account. This will ensure the document is added to the appropriate review queue. Please do not upload employee documentation to the employer portal.

Trouble emailing invoices? Here's the solution.

To help protect the agency from viruses, the Oklahoma Health Care Authority blocks all emails from outside the agency that contain the word "invoice."

When emailing invoices to Insure Oklahoma, please get creative with the description! To help ensure your email is received, please use other words, such as "billing," "statement," or the abbreviation, "inv." You may also use the employer ID number in the subject line. We'll know what to do with the attachment.

Recertifying employees

Insure Oklahoma will no longer backdate applications. Please ensure employees have reapplied and have been approved before their eligibility ends.
